

Terror Strikes America: A 12-page special report

Statesman Journal

Wednesday
September 12, 2001

StatesmanJournal.com

SERVING OREGON'S CAPITAL AND THE MID-VALLEY

★ 50 CENTS

'FIND THE COURAGE'

— Gov. John Kitzhaber

Bush: Terrorists 'cannot dent the steel of American resolve.'

Online updates at
StatesmanJournal.com

The latest news on the rescue efforts and the aftermath of Tuesday's attack will be updated throughout the day at StatesmanJournal.com.

The site also contains:

- A regularly updated photo gallery of images.
- An online exclusive notebook of comments and information.
- Links to graphics and information about terrorism, the buildings and Osama bin Laden.
- Special national and local sections featuring stories about the disaster.

At a glance

MAIL

Air cargo switched to trucks Tuesday. No guarantees on express delivery. Private carriers say packages could be delayed 24 to 48 hours.

ARLINES

All flights were grounded Tuesday and were expected to resume at 9 a.m. today. Call individual airlines for flight information.

GOVERNMENT

State offices will be open today. There may be sporadic federal closures. Call ahead.

COUNSELING

Social-service agencies and schools were providing counseling to help children and adults cope with the aftermath of Tuesday's attacks.

CANCELLATIONS

Several Tuesday events were canceled or postponed, especially high school sports events. A Chicago concert at Spirit Mountain Casino was canceled and will not be rescheduled. Other major events such as the Bonnie Raitt concert on Friday and the Wynton Marsalis concert next Tuesday should take place as planned.

HOW TO HELP

Blood donations can be made Thursday in Salem; before then donors must go to Portland. Gifts of money can be made to Northwest Medical Teams.

PRAYER SERVICES

Several churches are opening their doors today for special prayer services.

To our readers

Today's special report and Tuesday's two "Extra" editions were produced under intense deadline pressure by the dedicated employees of the Statesman Journal.

Copies of the Tuesday "Extras" may be obtained, while limited supplies last, at the Statesman Journal customer service counter, 280 Church St. NE., 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Readers with stories to tell can call the Statesman Journal at (503) 589-6963. Please leave your name and daytime and evening phone numbers.

OUT OF THE RUBBLE: New York City firefighters raise the U.S. flag at the site of the World Trade Center. Rescue workers labored through the night in a desperate search for survivors. But Mayor Rudy Giuliani predicted a death toll that will horrify America.

BY ALEX DAVIS
Statesman Journal

On a day that some called the bloodiest in American history, Gov. John Kitzhaber urged Oregonians to "find the courage not to allow these kinds of things to disrupt our lives."

President Bush made similar comments Tuesday evening, and military experts argued that Oregon is an unlikely target for the type of terror experienced in New York and Washington, D.C.

But the pleas for calm were hard to heed. Airports closed across the country, including Portland, where hundreds of flights were delayed or canceled.

Gas stations ran low in the Salem area, and attendants warned that prices may soar today.

Churches across Oregon held special midday and evening services, their leaders struggling to find the right words.

Schools increased security, businesses closed early and families trained eyes on TVs.

It remains unclear how many Oregonians, if any, were killed or injured in Tuesday's attacks.

As many as 800 people may have been killed or injured when a hijacked plane hit the Pentagon. Possibly thousands more are dead amid the rubble of the World Trade Center.

In his national address, Bush said the nation's "very freedom came under attack."

Authorities say life in Oregon and America will be changed forever. Immigration policies, airport security and national defense will be scrutinized for days to come.

The death toll and the investigations will take weeks. Healing and rebuilding will take years.

Page 2A

- President Bush reacts to strikes.
- Oregon comes to a standstill.

Page 3A

- Local schools react to the tragedy.
- Police agencies prepare.
- Arab Americans may face backlash.
- A rally at Willamette University urges compassion.

Page 4A

- People seek solace at churches.
- Oregon's congressional delegation takes a stand.

- Columnist Carol Currie talks to friends and neighbors.

Page 5A

- Reactions from across America and around the world, including the Taliban government.

Page 6A

- Volunteers assist with efforts to look for dead and injured.
- Families search hospitals for missing loved ones.
- Manhattan is isolated as transportation shuts down and phones go out.

Page 7A

- The Pentagon is hit as workers watch the New York attack on TV.
- The number of dead and injured at the Pentagon is unknown.

Page 8A

- The United States' next step is to hunt down the groups responsible.
- Precautions are taken in Oregon, but terrorist threats minimized.
- State agencies on alert after the terrorist actions on the East Coast.
- Experts say Oregon would be an unlikely target for terrorism.

Page 9A

- Wall Street shuts down after the mayhem in New York City.
- Portland airport is shut down, stranding tens of thousands.
- National Guard troops are ready.
- Businesses worry the attacks will cause the economy to slow.
- High schools and universities cancel or postpone games.
- Pro sports come to a standstill as events and games are canceled.

Page 11AA

- Next local blood draw is Thursday.

- Churches plan services.
- Grief counseling is offered.
- The shutdown of air traffic affects all of the United States.

Page 12AA

- Many local events are canceled.

Page 9C

- Editorial: Cautious response.

Also in today's issue:

Today's B Section is labeled AA

- World/nation Pages 13-14AA
- Sports Pages 15-17AA
- Business Page 18AA
- Local news Pages 1-10C